Long-Term Incentives for Employees

Question

Does the company offer programs on long-term incentives for employees below the senior management level?

Rationale

Long-term incentive programs can be essential for companies to retain well-qualified employees over time. Such programs serve to orient key decisions throughout the organization around longer-term goals and strategic objectives, giving companies a greater likelihood of success over time. This question assesses the long-term incentive programs the company has in place, the time frame for which performance incentives are paid out, the extent to which these programs apply to employees across the organization, and the extent to which they are associated with sustainability principles.

Key Definitions

Long-term incentives: Variable compensation that is tied to the performance of an employee. The performance can be measured during one or multiple years. This can include deferred cash bonuses, stock options and restricted stock units. Employee benefits, such as pension contributions (whether mandatory or voluntary) or extra vacation days, should not be included as these are not linked to employee performance.

Sustainability performance: It can relate to any sustainability goals set your company, whether they are related to environmental issues, social issues such as occupational health and safety, or any other sustainability issue defined as material by your company.

Senior management level: Refers to employees that are within two levels of the CEO as a maximum. "Employees below senior management" thus refers to all employees that are below the "senior management level". Please note that the definition of "senior management level" is up to the company as we allow the company to choose the best definition according to its business plan and company structure. If your definition differs from our definition due to your business model, please explain this in the question.

Data Requirements

Companies with less than 100 employees (e.g. investment offices and vehicles, funds, holding companies, etc.) should mark this question Not Applicable.

Average time period for performance: The average pay-out time period on which these incentive programs are based. If different pay-out time periods are used for different employee categories, please use a weighted average of the pay-out time periods for long-term incentive programs that exist.

Percentage of your workforce below senior management level (max. two levels from the CEO): Refers to the percentage of employees that are not considered senior management that are part of the long-term incentives program. For example, if your company has 100 employees, 10 are senior management (a maximum of two level from the CEO in the organizational structure) and 10 employees below senior management are part of the long-term incentives program, then 11% (=10/90*100) of employees below senior management level are covered in the program.

Long-term incentives for executive management and/or senior management are not accepted in this question.
