Key Definitions

Process innovations: They include processes that are new to the company and include the introduction of technically new or majorly improved manufacturing technologies for the production of goods, respectively for the supply of services or objects. This might also lead to product changes, but the increase in efficiency is the main goal. New manufacturing processes that are sold to other companies are considered product innovations. Environmental and social process improvements are also considered process innovations. Pure organizational or management changes, however, are not considered process innovations.

Data Requirements

Supporting evidence:

- The document(s) you attached will be used to verify the qualitative part of your response. If a question text field is available, a comprehensive answer in that field can be accepted instead of a supporting document. Any qualitative response that cannot be verified in the attached document(s) or via the information provided in the related question text field (if available) will not be accepted.
- Quantitative figures provided in the response do not need supporting evidence. You may still provide a reference using the reference clip. This could include examples of the underlying calculations or approaches to data aggregation used to compile the provided quantitative information.
- The supporting documents do not need to be available in the public domain.
