Corruption & Bribery Cases

Question

Please indicate the number of substantiated cases of corruption and bribery in the last four fiscal years as well as the number of ongoing external investigations by local or international authorities. For past cases, if you did not incur any fines and settlements in a given year, please enter a value of "0." For ongoing cases, if you do not have any ongoing external investigation, please select the appropriate "no" option.

Rationale

Corruption and bribery are economic crimes that are consistently harmful to a company's intangible assets (such as its reputation, staff morale, or business relationships). Companies doing business in countries with weak anti-corruption and bribery laws are exposed to additional reputational and legal risks. Evidence of corrupt practices can result in a company's exclusion from contracts financed by institutions that blacklist suppliers of bribes (for example, the World Bank's list of debarred firms), potentially affecting its future earnings. Due to the additional types of risk that corruption introduces, it creates uncertain consequences for investors, and therefore increases the risk premium a company has to pay for debt or equity. This question assesses the number of confirmed corruption and bribery cases against the company in the past four years.

Key Definitions

Corruption: This refers to "the abuse of entrusted power for private gain" (Transparency International) and can be instigated by individuals or organizations. In the [GRI] Guidelines, corruption includes practices such as bribery, facilitation payments, fraud, extortion, collusion, and money laundering. It also includes an offer or receipt of any gift, loan, fee, reward, or other advantage to or from any person as an inducement to do something that is dishonest, illegal, or a breach of trust in the conduct of the enterprise's business (these definitions are based on Transparency International, 'Business Principles for Countering Bribery', 2011). This may include cash or in-kind benefits, such as free goods, gifts, and holidays, or special personal services provided for the purpose of an improper advantage or that may result in moral pressure to receive such an advantage."

Substantiated: A government, regulatory, industry association, self-regulatory, or a similar body, or the company itself has determined there was a case of corruption. A case in the appeal process is considered to have been substantiated during the appeal, and is only considered unsubstantiated once there has been a ruling on the appeal.

Data Requirements

Please include only incidents of corruption that have been substantiated. This does not include incidents that are currently pending investigation.

The reported figure should include:

- a. Total number and nature of confirmed incidents of corruption.
- b. Total number of confirmed incidents in which employees were dismissed or disciplined for corruption.
- c. Total number of confirmed incidents when contracts with business partners were terminated or not renewed due to violations related to corruption.
- d. Public legal cases regarding corruption brought against the organization or its employees during the reporting period and the outcomes of such cases. Source: GRI Standard 205-3
