Board Accountability

Question

Does the company have practices to ensure the accountability of its board of directors/supervisory board and the alignment with the long-term interests of shareholders?

Rationale

An effective board of directors is vital for good corporate governance. Several studies have found that companies with specific procedures and practices designed to ensure the accountability of their board and a close alignment with shareholders' interests perform better than those that do not. We use the parameters in this question as a proxy for the overall effectiveness of the board. In addition to meeting attendance, the number of external directorships board members hold, and performance assessment, we ask for information on how board members are elected. The frequency of elections and structure of the process can affect the accountability of board members: when board members are elected individually and on an annual basis, shareholders are able to vote them off if they are concerned with their performance. If shareholders can frequently express their confidence in or concerns about board member

Key Definitions

This question only applies to board members who represent shareholders (or multiple stakeholders including shareholders). For two-tier board structures, this question should only include the supervisory board and not the management board.

Meeting attendance: this section refers to two measures: on one hand, the actual average attendance rate for the past year, and on the other hand, if there is any corporate guideline for meeting attendance, i.e. if there is a minimum proportion of board meetings that each board member is required to attend. Both rates should be calculated on the basis of the total number of board meetings held annually.

Other mandates: refers to the number of other external directorships in publicly listed companies held by members of the board of directors/supervisory board (examples include executive board positions such as CEO, or member of the board of directors at another company). Board memberships in private limited companies, educational institutes (schools, colleges, or universities), and non-profit organizations are not considered in our definition of other mandates. Only the number of mandates for independent and non-executive directors should be considered, not mandates for executive directors or employee representatives. In this section, the actual number of directors with four or fewer other mandates is considered together with any corporate guidelines on restrictions on the number of other mandates.

Board performance assessments: We consider two types of assessments: (1) self-assessments of the board's performance, meaning that the board members themselves are allowed to systematically evaluate their performance; (2) independent assessments of the board's performance, meaning that an independent third party evaluates the board's performance. Such assessments are considered "regular" if the company clearly shows that there are guidelines to perform them at specific intervals (such as annually or every second year). Assessments are also considered regular if the company is carrying them out for the first time but with the explicit intention of conducting them regularly. It is considered best practice to carry out both types of assessments on a regular basis, although not necessarily annually.

Annual election of board members: refers to a procedure whereby each board member has to be re-elected at each annual general meeting for shareholders (as opposed to electing a member for multiple years). Individual election of board members refers to a procedure whereby each member is elected on an individual basis (as opposed to members being elected by slate).
