CEO-to-Employee Pay Ratio

Question

Does the company track the ratio of the median or mean employee compensation or the total annual compensation of the CEO?

Rationale

In the aftermath of the global financial crisis, many countries have implemented or are planning to implement reforms regarding the transparency of executive compensation. Transparency is vital to restore trust among shareholders, employees, customers and other stakeholders, and hence to improve corporate reputation. Companies that are taking a proactive approach to align their reporting with this global trend and improving disclosure about executive compensation will be in a better position to fend off criticism than those that are not.

In addition to complying with new regulations, transparent reporting on CEO compensation and the mean or median compensation of other employees provides a basis for understanding the "pay gap" and addresses concerns from investors and stakeholders as to whether executive compensation is justified.

In this question, we assess whether companies (including non-US-based companies) disclose this information. The Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (Pub.L. 111-203, H.R. 4173) is a federal statute in the US that was signed into law by President Barack Obama on July 21, 2010. The Dodd-Frank Act clearly states that, in terms of CEO compensation disclosure, a company is obliged to disclose to the shareholders: the median of the annual total compensation of all employees of the issuer, except the CEO (or any equivalent position); the annual total compensation of the CEO (or any equivalent position); and the ratio of the median of the annual total to the total CEO compensation.

Key Definitions

Salary: This is defined as the total annual compensation including all bonuses but excluding pension benefits and fringe benefits.

Total annual compensation: This is defined as the total compensation including all bonuses but excluding pension benefits and fringe benefits.

Median of the total annual compensation of all employees: This is defined according to the general mathematical definition of median: the median of a sequence is the middle number when sorting all numbers from low to high. This is different from the mean of the total annual compensation of all employees since the mean of a sequence of numbers is calculated by adding up all the numbers and dividing this total by the number of entries in the sequence. In this question, either the median or the mean may be provided; it is not necessary to provide both.

The ratio should be calculated as the total CEO compensation divided by the median or mean employee compensation (i.e., the reported figure should be the multiple of the employee compensation).

Data Requirements

While we expect the figure to cover the entirety of a company's global operations, for this question, companies may make cost-of-living adjustments to the compensation of employees residing in a jurisdiction different from that of the CEO, provided that these adjustments are applied to all such employees included in the calculation, and are explained in the company comment section, and that the raw, unadjusted data is also provided in the company comment section.

If the company has fewer than 100 employees (e.g., investment vehicles and holding companies), this question should be marked "Not applicable".

If the company reports that its CEO doesn't have any fixed compensation on/and mark 0 or 1 under the "Total CEO Compensation", this question should be marked "Not applicable".

If the company is a REIT company managed by a third-party organization with zero employees, this question should be marked "Not applicable".

If the company is a limited partnership entity with no employees of its own and is managed by a general partner, this question should be marked "Not applicable".

Disclosure Requirements

Disclosure requirements for partially public question

For listed companies: Additional credit will be granted for relevant publicly available evidence covering one of the following aspects of this question:

- Annual compensation of CEO and median (mean) annual compensation of all employees except the CEO (or any equivalent position).
- Ratio between the total annual compensation of the CEO and the median (mean) employee compensation.

For Non-listed companies: Internal documents covering the above-mentioned information are generally accepted.
