Tax Strategy and Governance

Question

Does the company have a group-wide commitment on tax strategy and governance and is it available publicly?

Rationale

Tax avoidance strategies are usually set up in a legally sound way. Therefore, general statements about a company's intention to comply with all tax laws and regulations in its countries of operation are not sufficient. Every company should be able to give a coherent justification of their approach to key tax issues such as the use of tax minimization techniques in line with their approach to other corporate social responsibility issues.

The adoption of a formal tax policy serves to guide company practices and provide investors, regulators and other external stakeholders with an idea of the company's tax risk profile, against which practices and disclosures can be compared. An effective policy should be overseen by the board of directors, created in conjunction with relevant senior management, and regularly reviewed to ensure emerging risks are addressed.

This question seeks to determine if the company has a group-wide tax policy or strategy available in the public domain that addresses sensitive or high-risk tax issues in a clear and sustainable way.

Key Definitions

Tax avoidance: Tax avoidance is an abuse of the tax system. It is a deliberate attempt to get out of an obligation to pay tax by entering into a set of artificial financial arrangements with little or no commercial purpose other than to reduce a tax bill. Tax avoidance is unethical in that it seeks to undermine tax law and public policy and it is frequently found to be unlawful. Tax avoidance can be within the letter, but not the spirit, of the law. (Source: TaxWatch)

The spirit of the tax laws: This refers to the intention of the policymaker who wrote the respective law.

The letter of the law: This refers to the literal interpretation of the law only.

Low tax jurisdiction: For this question, low tax jurisdiction refers to any jurisdiction with significantly lower tax rates than other jurisdictions in which the company operates.

The arm's length principle: This valuation principle is commonly applied to commercial and financial transactions between related companies. It says that transactions should be valued as if they had been carried out between unrelated parties, each acting in their own best interest.

Tax havens: (Offshore) countries or jurisdictions offering little or no tax liability. Tax havens may share limited or no financial information with foreign tax authorities and may not require businesses to operate out of their country to receive tax benefits.

Data Requirements

While many companies have group-wide tax accounting policies with clearly defined roles and responsibilities, we specifically look for taxation policies that address issues such as responsible taxation, transparency, transfer pricing, etc., going beyond minimum legal tax disclosure requirements.

A commitment to compliance with the spirit as well as the letter of the tax laws and regulations in the countries in which the company operates: It will not be accepted if the information is merely a commitment to complying with the law, without a clear commitment to also comply with the spirit or intent of the law.

Policy endorsement: A statement that the commitment/policy is approved, overseen, reviewed or adopted by the board of directors or executive management. A policy can also be signed by the respective executive directors.

FBN industry: For a RIC (Regulated Investment Company) and for REIT companies, the criterion should be marked "The question is not applicable to the company" because these companies usually do not pay income taxes.

For companies that are Master Limited Partnerships (MLPs), this question can be marked "The question is not applicable to the company" because due to their structure, these companies usually do not pay corporate income taxes.

The questions in this criterion should be marked "The question is not applicable to the company":

- if the company's business model is to sell products but has 0 sales (even if they have revenues).
- for any new company that does not yet sell products (zero sales) because the company was recently launched, and its main product is still in R&D phase (e.g., clinical-stage biopharmaceutical companies).

Disclosure Requirements

Supporting evidence:

This question requires supporting evidence from the public domain. The information provided has to be included in your public reporting (e.g., annual report, sustainability report, integrated report, company publications) or on your corporate website.

Any response that cannot be verified in the attached public document(s) will not be accepted.
