NEWS RELEASE

Canada Bread Establishes Special Committee in Connection with the Potential Sale of Maple Leaf Foods' 90% Interest

Toronto, October 21, 2013 – The Board of Directors of Canada Bread Company, Limited ("Canada Bread") (CBY:TSX) today announced that it has established a Special Committee comprised solely of independent directors in connection with the potential sale by its parent company, Maple Leaf Foods Inc. ("Maple Leaf"), of its 90% interest in Canada Bread.

Maple Leaf has advised the Canada Bread Board that it is exploring strategic alternatives for its Bakery business, including a potential sale of the Company's 90% interest in Canada Bread. The Special Committee has been established to seek to ensure that all Canada Bread shareholders are treated fairly and that the Company's interests are taken into account during any such process that may affect Canada Bread.

The Special Committee has engaged CIBC World Markets Inc. as its financial advisor, and has engaged independent legal counsel and is authorized to retain other advisors as it considers appropriate.

There can be no assurance that the process being undertaken by Maple Leaf will result in the consummation of any transaction. The Special Committee does not intend to comment further regarding the process being undertaken by Maple Leaf until such time that it deems disclosure appropriate.
