Workforce Breakdown: Gender

Question

Does the company monitor the following indicators regarding workforce gender diversity?

Rationale

We assess various Labor KPIs of an organization to determine not only the quality, but also the transparency of its reporting on diversity issues. This question specifically assesses workforce diversity and aims to assess the proportion of women in senior management relative to junior management and how the proportion of women changes as the management level and P&L responsibility increases. This is an indicator of a company's ability to retain its top female talent from junior management up to senior management positions.

This question looks at the companies' ability to disclose this data, as well as performance, with the performance aspect specifically considering companies' ability to retain female talent. This is measured by comparing the proportion of junior female managers to the proportion of senior female managers.

Performance Summary

Key Definitions

The definitions provided below are guidelines that should be followed as closely as possible. If a different definition is used, this should be explained accordingly and a consistent definition should be used in any other questions that may require information about organizational structures.

Management positions: This refers to all levels of management, including junior, middle and senior level management.

Junior management positions: refer to first-line managers, junior managers and the lowest level of management within a company's management hierarchy. These individuals are typically responsible for directing and executing the day-to-day operational objectives of organizations, conveying the directions of higher level officials and managers to subordinate personnel.

Middle management positions: refer to managers who head specific departments (such as accounting, marketing, production) or business units, or who serve as project managers in flat organizations. Middle managers are responsible for implementing the top management's policies and plans and typically have two management levels below them.

Top management positions: refer to management positions with a reporting line at most two levels away from the CEO. They include individuals who plan, direct, and formulate policies, set strategy, and provide the overall direction of enterprises/organizations for the development and delivery of products or services, within the parameters approved by boards of directors or other governing bodies.

Revenue-generating functions: refer to line management roles in departments such as sales, or that contribute directly to the output of products or services. It excludes support functions such as HR, IT, Legal. May also be referred to as roles that have P&L responsibility.

Data Requirements

In the section related to breakdown of workforce we consider aspects beyond gender breakdowns, such as employees from ethnic minorities or employees with disabilities. Expat assignments or employment by multinational firms are not considered.

Disclosure requirements for partially public question. Additional credit will be granted for relevant publicly available evidence covering each of the following aspects of this question:

- Female share of total workforce (%)
- Females in management positions (as % of total management workforce)
