Workforce Trade Union and Collective Bargaining Coverage

Question

Does the company publicly report on the total percentage of its employees that are represented by an independent trade union or covered by collective bargaining agreements?

Rationale

We assess various Labor KPIs at an organization to determine the quality and transparency of its reporting. In line with ILO Convention No. 87 and No. 98, this question assesses if your company allows employees to join an independent trade union.

Performance Summary
Question Level Company Performance	94

Key Definitions

Collective bargaining agreements: Written legal contracts between an employer and a union representing the employees. These agreements can be at the sector, national, regional, organizational, or workplace level.

Independent trade union: A trade union that is not under the control of an employer, group of employers or of one or more employers' associations. It is free from interference by an employer or any such group or association.

Data Requirements

Percentage of employees covered by collective bargaining agreements: Employees who are eligible but not actually covered by collective bargaining agreements should be excluded from the count.

This question requires public evidence.

Please note: If the company has fewer than 100 employees or zero employees in its organization, then please mark "The question is not applicable to the company."

Employees based in countries where trade unions or collective bargaining agreements are illegal should not be included. Employees in countries where it is legal but the country has not ratified ILO Conventions 87 (Freedom of Association) or 98 (Right to Organize and Collective Bargaining) should still be included.
